Privacy Notice – Pupil Data

Introduction

The College collects a significant amount of information about pupils. This notice explains why information is collected, how it is used, the type of information collected and the lawful reasons to do so.

Why does the College collect data?

The College collects and uses pupil data to:

- Fulfil statutory obligations to safeguard and protect children and vulnerable people
- Enable targeted, personalised learning for pupils
- Manage behaviour and effective discipline
- Monitor our effectiveness
- Comply with our legal obligations to share data
- Support pupils to fulfil their potential
- Keep pupils, parents and carers informed about College events and College news

Our Legal Obligations

The College must make sure that information collected and used about pupils is in line with the GDPR and Data Protection Act. This means that the College must have a lawful reason to collect the data, and that if it is shared with another organisation or individual there must be a legal basis to do so.

The lawful basis for schools to collect information comes from a variety of sources, such as the Education Act 1996, Regulation 5 of The Education (Information About Individual Pupils) (England) Regulations 2013, Article 6 and Article 9 of the GDPR.

The Department for Education and Local Authorities require the College to collect certain information and report back to them. This is called a 'public task' and is recognised in law as it is necessary to provide the information.

The College also has obligations to collect data about children who are at risk of suffering harm, and to share that with other agencies who have a responsibility to safeguard children, such as the police and social care.

The College also shares information about pupils who may need or have an Education Health and Care Plan. Medical teams have access to some information about pupils, either by agreement or because the law says that information must be shared, for example with school nurses who may visit the College.

Counselling services, Careers Advisors and employees of the Careers Services, occupational therapists are people the College will share information with, so long as the College has consent or is required by law to do so.

The College must keep up to date information about parents and carers for emergency contact.

How we use the data

The College also uses various third party tools to make sure that pupils' best interests are a priority. The College records details about progress, attainment and pupil development to support future planning and learning.

The College uses software to track progress, attainment and absence.

The College uses data to manage and monitor pastoral needs and attendance/absences so that suitable strategies can be planned if required.

The College uses systems to take electronic payments for trips, revision aids and College meals. This includes financial software to manage College budgets, which may include some pupil data.

Data can be used to monitor College effectiveness, the impact of intervention and learning needs across groups of pupils as well as individual children.

The College may use consultants, experts and other advisors to assist the College in fulfilling its obligations and to help run the College properly. The College might need to share pupil information with them if this is relevant to their work.

The College also uses contact information to keep pupils, parents, carers up to date about College events.

What type of data is collected?

The Department for Education and government require to collect a lot of data by law, so that they can monitor and support schools more widely, as well as checking on individual schools effectiveness.

The categories of pupil information that the College collects, holds and shares include the following:

Personal information – e.g. names, pupil numbers and addresses

Characteristics – e.g. ethnicity, language, nationality, country of birth and free school meal eligibility
Attendance information – e.g. number of absences and absence reasons

Assessment information – e.g. KS2 SAT assessment results, Teacher assessments

Relevant medical information and social care

Information relating to SEND and health needs

Behavioural information – e.g. number of fixed term exclusions

CCTV, photos and video recordings of you are also personal information.

The National Pupil Database (NPD)

The NPD is owned and managed by the Department for Education (DfE) and contains information about pupils in schools in England. It provides invaluable evidence on educational performance to inform independent research, as well as studies commissioned by the Department. It is held in electronic format for statistical purposes. This information is securely collected from a range of sources including schools, local authorities and awarding bodies.

The College is required by law, to provide information about our pupils to the DfE as part of statutory data collections such as the school census. Some of this information is then stored in the NPD. The law that allows this is the Education Information About Individual Pupils (England) Regulations 2013.

To find out more about the pupil information we share with the Department, for the purpose of data collections, go to <https://www.gov.uk/education/data-collection-and-censuses-for-schools>.

To find out more about the NPD, go to <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/national-pupil-database-user-guide-and-supporting-information>.

The Department for Education (DfE) may share information about our pupils from the NPD with third parties who promote the education or well-being of children in England by:

- conducting research or analysis
- producing statistics
- providing information, advice or guidance

The DfE has robust processes in place to ensure the confidentiality of our data is maintained and there are stringent controls in place regarding access and use of the data. Decisions on whether DfE releases data to third parties are subject to a strict approval process and based on a detailed assessment of:

- who is requesting the data
- the purpose for which it is required
- the level and sensitivity of data requested: and
- the arrangements in place to store and handle the data

To be granted access to pupil information, organisations must comply with strict terms and conditions covering the confidentiality and handling of the data, security arrangements and retention and use of the data.
